Cibo

Where: Toronto

The Gist: A relative newcomer to the King West scene, Cibo has quickly become the city's flashiest and unmistakably most Italian-influenced wine bar in just under a year. The bar and restaurant features 8,000 square feet of space with stone archways and walls, a glass-enclosed wine cellar in the middle of the dining room, and even four conference rooms equipped with Wi-Fi and AV. The posh watering hole focuses on wines from Italy (offering over 2,400 bottles) and its menu of classic Italian cuisine with more than 88 dishes to choose from. – JP
